KNOW YOUR CYBER

CYBERMAN

These massive, stomping, steel soldiers were originally created by John Lumic on a Parallel Earth to be human point two. They have plain steel helmets.

CYBER CONTROLLER

The Cyber Controller sits on a Cyber throne and has grey eyes and a clear panel on his head, revealing the squidgy brain of John Lumic. Major yuck!

CYBERMEN

"It's sort of part man, part robot."
The Eleventh
Doctor

CYBERLEADER

This Cyberleader can be recognised by his distinctive black handles showing he's in charge. He and his troops helped trap the Doctor in the Pandorica prison.

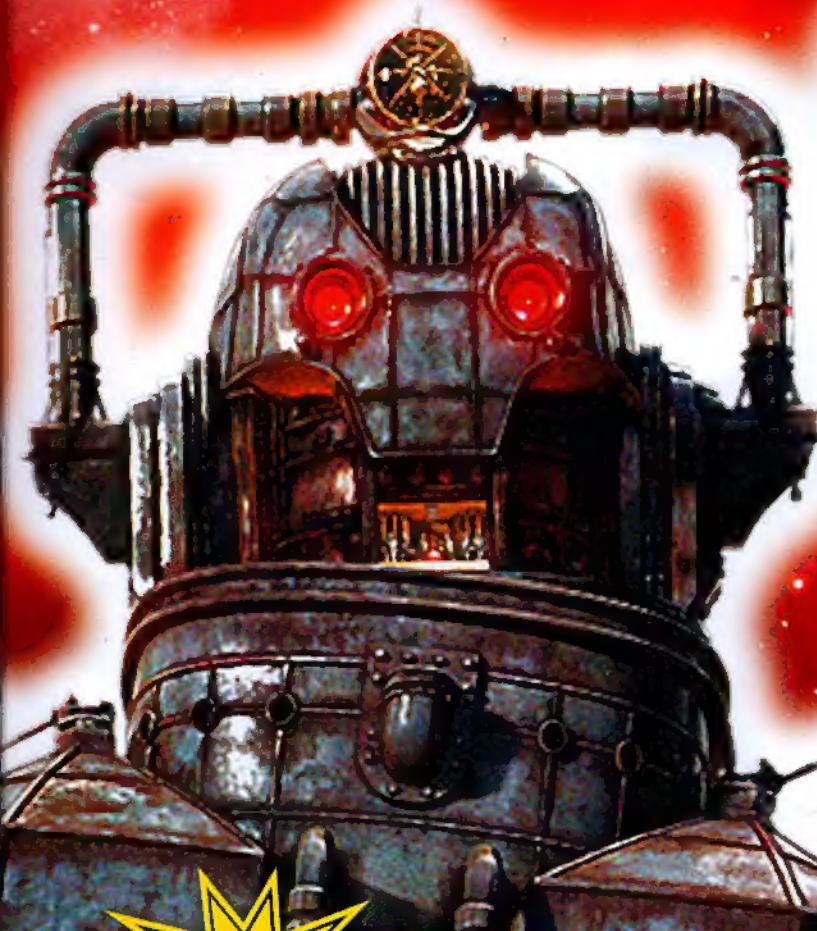

CYBER SENTRY

This rusty, battered old Cyber head got hacked off its body by a Celt. The human head inside died, so the robot part went hunting for fresh meat - Amy Pond!

TURN OVER FOR MORE CYBER HEADS! >>>>

dwa@bbc.co.uk and put CYBERMAN in the subject line!

CYBERKING

The CyberKing was a massive invasion ship that stomped all over Victorian London, before the Tenth Doctor destroyed it and zapped it back into the Void.

CYBERLEADER

Craftier than your average Cyberman, this black-masked Cyberleader with a veiny brain tricked Miss Hartigan into becoming the huge CyberKing.

"They are the stuff of nightmares."
The Ninth Doctor

CYBERSHADE

The copper-masked Shades are wild Cyber creatures with the brains of cats or dogs and sharp claws. They can scuttle up walls like a spider but they can't speak.

DID YOU KNOW?

The Ninth Doctor and Rose once came across this Cyber head in an alien museum.

OTHER CYBERMEN WE'VE MET...

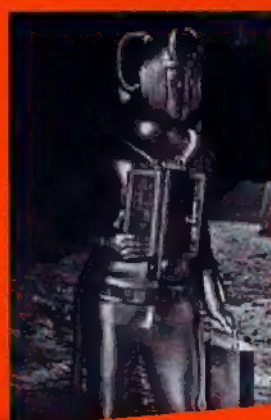

The first time we met the Cybermen they looked like this! They had white cloth faces and human hands.

The next time we saw them they had silver suits, only three fingers and tried to take over a moonbase!

These Cybermen had different helmet-heads and invaded London by hiding in the sewers.

These next Cybermen had deadly weapons built into their helmets but were allergic to gold.

When the Fifth Doctor met these Cybermen, they had changed again and were more angry than they'd ever been!

THE DOCTOR

A day in the life of a... MONSTER MO

Ailsa Berk tells us what it's like trying to choreograph creepy creatures!

"Before becoming a monster mover, I worked inside the costumes for films like Star Wars. Then I was asked to help performers who haven't worked in costumes. It wasn't planned, but I liked it and went with it!"

AILS TEACHING THE FLOOD
HOW TO RUN

SONTARANS IN TRAINING

"I get sent a script and audition people, as we often want something specific, such as height. Then I talk to the director about what they want to see. I set up a workshop following the guidelines of the script and see what the director thinks."

OOD SCHOOL!

"There can be limits to what some costumes will let you do. With the Cybermen, the director had clear ideas about arm movements, which we adapted because the fibreglass chest plate got in the way."

PREPARING SCARECROWS

OVER

SILURIAN SOLDIERS

"Armies are the hardest to move. With the Cybermen and Judoon, they can only see straight forward. In workshops, if we don't have the heads, I restrict the performers' vision using masks with little pinholes across the eyes so they can get used to it!"

JUDOON ARMY

CYBERMEN ARE A TALL ORDER!

"I don't perform inside the costumes for Doctor Who, as it's difficult to be inside and oversee the whole thing. Also, I'm only 158cm tall, so I could never be a Cyberman - they're 182cm tall!"

LIZARDY SILURIAN

"With animal-like creatures, we translate that into human performance. The Silurians had a lizard-like quality, and the Tritovores were based on flies, with quick, sharp movements. I watched footage of reptiles, but for the flies I just looked around me!"

Typical day

7.00am

Wake up, pack a bag with wet-weather gear and scripts.

8.00am

Starring: Matt Smith as the Doctor, Karen Gillan as Amy Pond and Arthur Darvill as Rory Williams

Amy and Mo try to rescue the Doctor and Nasreen, but Restac wants to execute them all! Malohkeh wakes a wise Silurian called Eldane, hoping that he can help stop a war.

DOCTOR WHO ADVENTURES

DALEK INVASION FORCE

VISUAL RECOGNITION SYSTEM

This wacky gadget looks odd, but it saved the Doctor!

I thought you were just an embarrassing present from a dull godmother with two heads and bad breath.

At first, the Doctor thought this gadget was just a silly gift from his stinky, two-headed godmother. It was packed away in a big trunk in the TARDIS.

But it came in useful when an invisible monster, that only artist Vincent Van Gogh could see, was attacking people in a French town in 1890.

When you point this gadget's mirror at something or someone it gives you background information – its name, where it's from and how it lives.

When the Doctor pulled a funny face at this gadget, it immediately knew he was from Gallifrey. It even printed out pictures of his previous bodies, starting with his first. Clever, eh?

THE FIRST DOCTOR

Mirror identifies a person or creature.

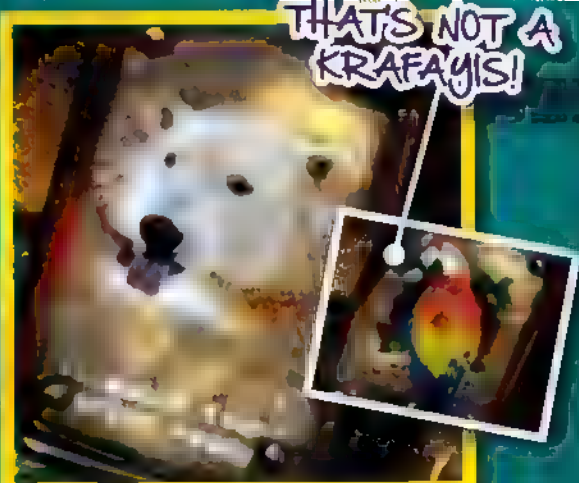

"I thought you were just a useless gadget!"

This bit beeps when it is on.

Straps go over the shoulders.

Bike handles help aim the mirror.

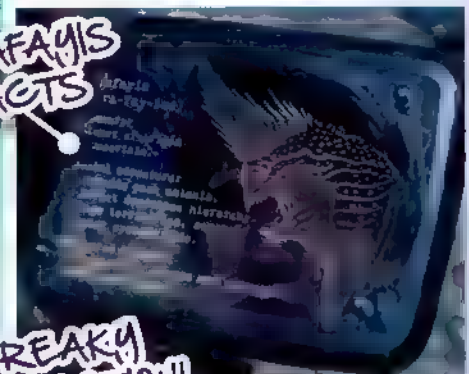

THAT'S NOT A KRAFAYIS!

It's very accurate, but it can't read pictures by impressionist painters! It thought Vincent's drawing of the Krafayis was a parrot and a polar bear!

The machine instantly recognised the Krafayis when it crept up behind the Doctor, peering in the mirror! The only way the Time Lord could search for the creature was by looking at the reflection!

KRAFAYIS FACTS

FREAKY REFLECTION!

You poor thing. You brutal, murderous, abandoned thing.

THE LIVING STORM

THE
AND AMY IN...

THE DOCTOR AND AMY ARE EXPLORING THE RUINS OF AN ALIEN CITY.

There must have been life on this world once,
Amy.

Yeah, someone must have built this city, but we haven't seen a single soul. What happened to them?

This wall is worn smooth, like it's been eroded by the elements, but in record time!

I think it's starting to rain.

SUDDENLY...

FLEEEEEEEEEEEEEEE

Doctor,
it's pouring down!

And that wind!
It's... oh, what would you call that sound?
Is it a howling? A roaring?

Whatever it is,
I didn't dress
for this weather.
Run for cover!

Amy, get down!

ERM!

Lightning!

We're surrounded!
Doctor, what are you doing?

If I can find the right setting on the sonic screwdriver...

I'm trying to excite their molecules, force them to evaporate, but there are too many of them.

They're starting to reform already.
We have to get out of here!

GIANT HAILSTONES
START TO FALL FROM THE SKY!

Not this way,
though, Amy.

Hailstones, the size of tennis balls!
It's like the sky is out to get us!

What we need is an umbrella. Remind me, next time, to bring an umbrella.
Umbrellas are cool.

Listen to that thunder!

In fact, yeah,
listen to it. Do you hear what I hear,
Doctor?

WHAT HAS AMY HEARD?

I think the storm itself has been trying to tell us something: 'Flee...' 'From'... 'This'... 'World'...

I think you might be right, Amy. In which case, we've nothing to lose by...

... Making a break for it!

It's a beautiful day. A beautiful world, in fact.

THE DOCTOR AND AMY KEEP RUNNING.

It's working! It's still raining all around us, but the storm is leaving a safe path for us.

As long as we keep heading straight for the TARDIS.

BACK AT THE TARDIS...

Now, the storm has stopped, just like that.

Yeah, and look around you, Amy...

It's just a shame that whatever lives in the sky here doesn't want to share that beauty.

NEXT WEEK - THE DOCTOR AND AMY GET CAUGHT IN A SPACE BUBBLE!
